"... Change upon change—yet one change cries out to another. . . . The sun sinks to rise again; the day is swallowed up in the gloom of the night, to be born out of it, as fresh as if it had never been quenched. Spring passes into summer and through summer and autumn into winter, only the more surely, by its own ultimate return, to triumph over that grave, towards which it resolutely hastened from its first hour. . . .

"... And there on that high spot . . . a large edifice appears, with many fronts and courts and long cloisters and corridors, and story upon story. And there it rises, under the invocation of the same sweet and powerful name which has been our strength and consolation in the Valley. . . .

"Arise, Mother of God, and with thy thrilling voice, speak to us. . . . Shine on us, dear Lady, with thy bright countenance, like the sun in his strength, O stella matutina, O harbinger of peace, till our year is one perpetual May. From thy sweet eyes, from thy pure smile, from thy majestic brow, let ten thousand influences rain down, not to confound or overwhelm, but to persuade, to win over thine enemies. O Mary, our hope, O Mother undefiled, fulfill to us the promise of this Spring. . . ."

These words, taken from the sermon, "The Second Spring," delivered by Cardinal Newman in 1852 on the occasion of the restoration of the Catholic Hierarchy in England, serve in one sense, at least, as a fitting foreword to this, the 1949 edition of the Arena Annual. For, we too, are in the midst of a "Second Spring."

We have departed from the dark corridors and the creaking stairs of the Washington Street school and stepped into the spacious, glistening halls of Canisius-on-Delaware. The venerable red brick of seventy-five years' standing has been transformed into the rough-hewn Gothic stone of our new "Citadel." It has been our privilege to enjoy for this one year, an all too brief span of time, and to hand down to our successors the grander surroundings, the advantages of progress and improvement, the benefits of better planning and modern equipment that personify the new Canisius. But most of all has it been our privilege to give into other hands the torch of the ideals and principles that hallowed the old school, that were the life-giving element of the first Spring of Canisius.

Canisius—that name down the years has been another name for fair-play, loyalty, truth. Over the course of four years that spirit has grown strong and is now vibrant within us. It is that spirit that we pass on to those who follow. It is that spirit that gives us renewed courage to meet the future with clear, bright vision, firm in our principles, strong in our faith. Let the light of that same faith glow through the shining rooms of the new Canisius! Carry on in your beautiful new Alma Mater, with truth, loyalty, fair-play as your watchwords. Let us both find our strength in our Stella Matutina, our Morning Star, Mary, the clear beacon in the dawn of our new era. She it is who has kept the spirit of Canisius strong all these years, she it is who will keep it burning in the years to come, she it is who will bless us and watch over us in this, our Second Spring.

REV. GERALD A. QUINN, S. J.

D E D I C

ATHER QUINN was the class teacher of Senior B for only a brief period at the beginning of this year when he was made the assistant administrator of the school, but the popularity he won last year as the prefect of discipline and teacher of Latin in third year at the Washington Street school has made a lasting impression.

Father Quinn has had considerable experience in dealing with high school students in his years as a Jesuit. As a scholastic, he taught at St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia. After his ordination, he was Student Counsellor and taught Fourth Year Latin at Loyola "Blakefield" in Baltimore from 1937 to 1943. The war interrupted things and Fr. Quinn enlisted as chaplain in the Army from 1943 until 1946. Upon his retirement, he stopped at Syracuse for one year and then came on to Buffalo to our good fortune.

His firm but genial nature, his ready wit, his infectious smile have won him many friends among our number. We, the class of forty-nine, dedicate this Annual to Fr. Quinn and express our gratitude to him and wish him many more fruitful years in the Lord's service.

CASPER M. ADELIZZIO

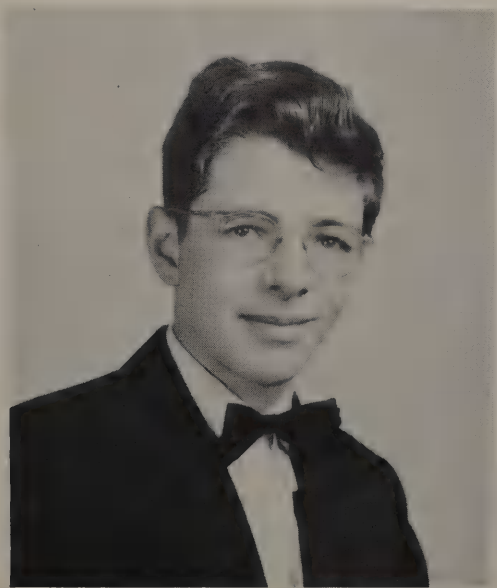

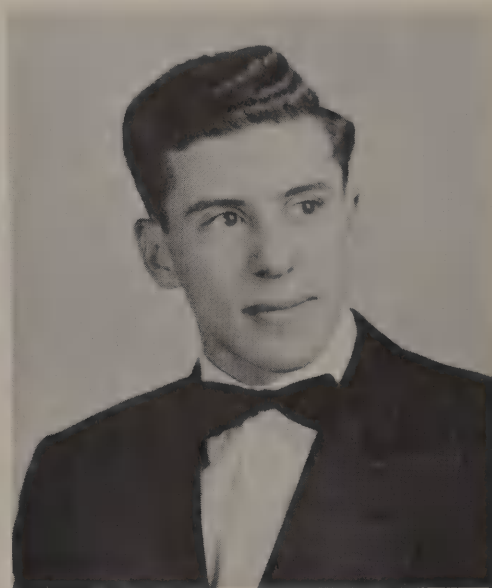

Sodality 2; K. B. S. 2, 4; Science Club 4; Glee Club 3, 4; Dramatics 4; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

His mellow baritone helped to swell the tones of many a Glee Club tune . . . his booming voice and hearty laugh are a commonplace on the third corridor . . . has the faculty of always wearing a smile . . . played the part of one of the mob in the December production of "Julius Caesar."

JOSEPH J. AUDINO

Sodality 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. 2, 3; Junior Bowling Congress, Treasurer 4; Bowling Team, Captain 4; Intramurals 2, 3, 4.

Called "Hoot" by the boys . . . comes up with terrific bowling scores . . . always looking for his five minute "rest" . . . U. B. law school bound . . . nation's next Mr. America, his muscles have muscles.

JOHN T. AVERY

Sodality 1; Arena Quarterly 2, 3, 4, Associate Editor 2, 3, Assistant Editor 4; Debating 1, 2, 3; Orchestra 1, 2, 3; Drum Corps 1, 2; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4; Silver Scholastic Medal 1; Class Secretary 2.

"Tap" . . . outstanding literary ability . . . has many Lackawanna buddies . . . friend to all who know him . . . known for his daily cartoons . . . his carefree manner.

WILLIAM J. BARRETT

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 4; Class Secretary 3; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

Easygoing is the word for "Willy." Quiet because he can't see talking for the sake of talking, easygoing because he feels he'll have plenty of time to kill himself working later, he accomplishes more by his taciturnity than many by their talking. An honor student, quick with a smile, Will has had many friends in his four years at Canisius.

RICHARD A. BATTAGLIA

Sodality 1, 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. 1, 2; Camera Club 2, 3, 4; Science Club 3, 4; German Club 2; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

What he lacks in size he makes up in spirit . . . Pestors Wende by always borrowing his Greek "notes" . . . wierd sounds issue from his corner of the room . . . Never forget the day he tried to smoke a cigarette.

PAUL J. BECKER

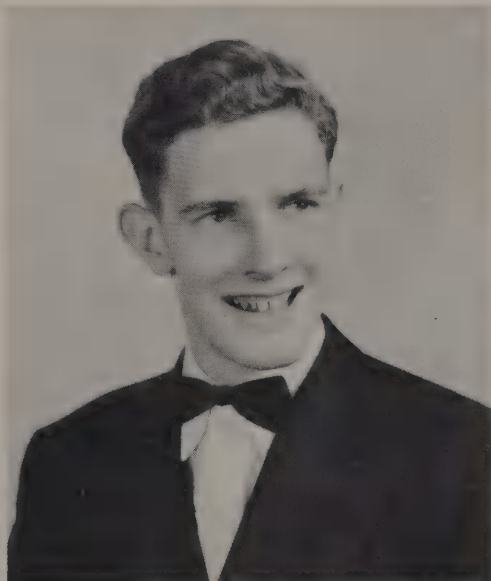

Sodality and K. B. S. 2, 3, 4; Science Club 4; Glee Club 4; Swimming Team 2, 3, 4; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

Swam the 200 free style for varsity . . . counselor at his father's boys' camp during the summer . . . has quite a girl friend in Buffalo . . . president of the "Humsters" . . . a winter sports fan . . . a good hunter and a better fisherman . . . "Let's have a song, fellow."

JOSEPH A. BENINTENDE

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 1, 3; St. John Berchmans 1, 2; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

"Hairless Joe" . . . pilot of the "banana boat" . . . always seems to have business elsewhere during school . . . Little Caesar of Four A . . . a match for anyone with his quick wit.

ROBERT F. BLAKE

Sodality, K. B. S., and Duces 1, 2, 3, 4; St. Johns Berchmans 1, 2, 3, 4; Science Club 4; Glee Club 4; German Club 3; Dramatics 4; Silver Medal 2; Vice-President 2.

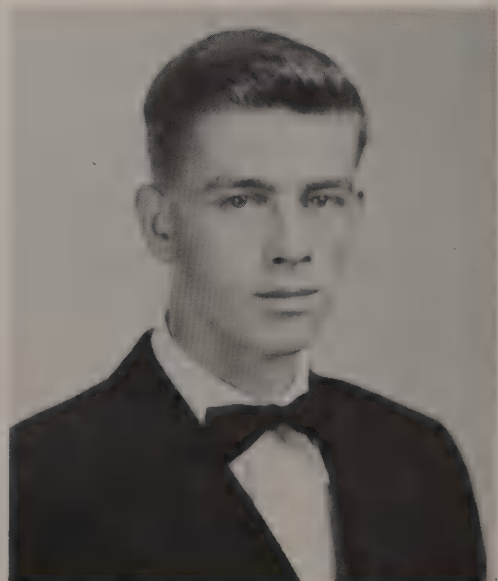

The object of Moose Ryan's constant torment . . . always on the lookout for Wally Kroczewski . . . constantly relates his trials and woes as an apprentice druggist . . . Four A's overgenerous paper supply.

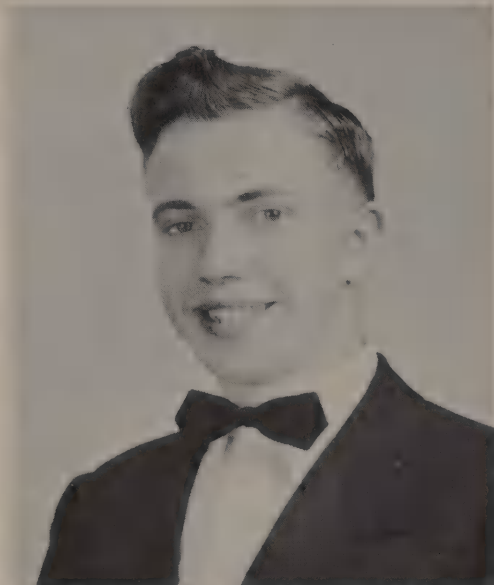

RONALD P. BOWERS

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Science Club 4; Glee Club 4; German Club 3; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

"The Hindus have strange burial rites"—Yes, you guessed it, Ronnie's holding the class with another excerpt from his storehouse of practical knowledge. An outstanding, composed speaker, Ronnie has a bright future. An outstanding jokester, and affable friend, Ron has "the goods" and has enlivened many a bull session in the Senior Lounge.

Sodality 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. 2, 3; Dramatics 4; Football Varsity 2; Intramurals 2, 3; Basketball and Football Ticket Committee 4.

Don is probably the only fellow in school history to quit the football squad because no helmet obtainable was large enough to cover his Herculean head. For the past two winters Don has been threatening to move to Alaska if Wiggin didn't provide Buffalo with more week-end snow so he could try out his new (?) skis!

Sodality 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; St. John Berchmans 2, 3; Dramatics 4; Basketball Minims 1.

Has a record that the boys at Canisius will be shooting at long after Jim's retired. He hasn't had one period of jug in four years . . . Due to his quiet, unassuming manner, his talents are not noted by many, apart from those who know him.

JOHN E. BREEN

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Arena Yearbook 4; Science Club 4; Football Minims 1; Silver Scholastic Medal 1; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

A good student and an outstanding personality . . . his unusual intelligence landed him a N. R. O. T. C. scholarship . . . with his common sense and spirit of scholarship, he will always come out on top.

DONALD P. BROARDT

Sodality 3, 4.

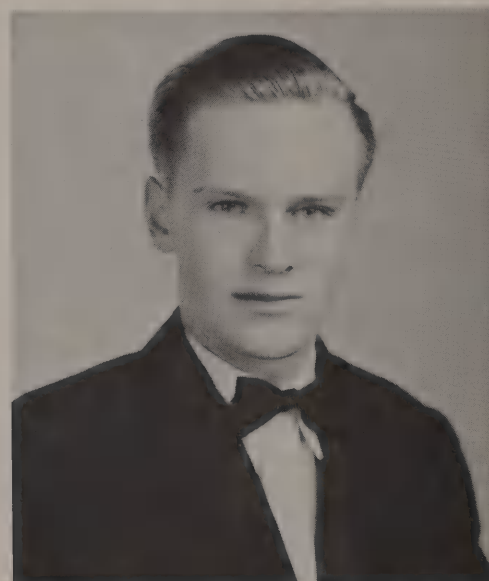

Don . . . one of many from Eggerstville . . . Father and Son performances have established him as the Giesecking of Canisius . . . disciple of Zippy Zorn . . . music his probable career.

JAMES E. BRODIE

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 2, 3, 4; Science Club 3, 4; Basketball Varsity Manager 4; Intramurals 1, 2, 3; Class Secretary 1.

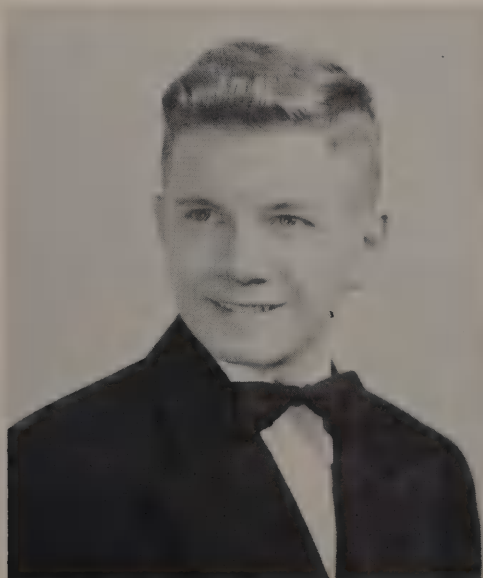

Able manager of this year's basketball team, Jim's willingness to tackle the unglamorous side of many school activities have made him a dependable, hard working representative of the class of '49. Quiet in class, Jim is as noisy as the next one when let loose. Usually seen encouraging a player or seeking extra learning after the bell, Jim has performed "Above and beyond the call of duty."

WILLIAM J. BROWN

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 1, 2; Dramatics 4; Arena Yearbook 4.

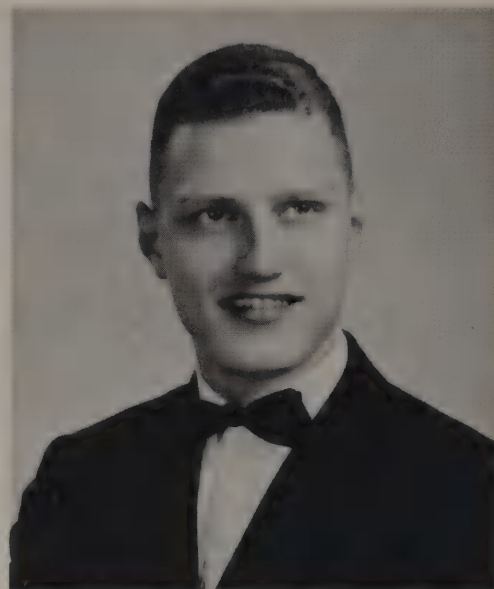

Buster . . . industrious beadle of 4E . . . stayed at Canisius even though two brothers went to St. Joe's . . . has had quite a few adventures in Kenmore with O'Malley . . . hidden star in Julius Caesar.

JAMES D. BURKE

Sodality 1, 2, 3; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Student Council 2, 3; Basketball Minims 1; Baseball Minims 1; Gold Scholastic Medal 1; Class President 2, 3; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

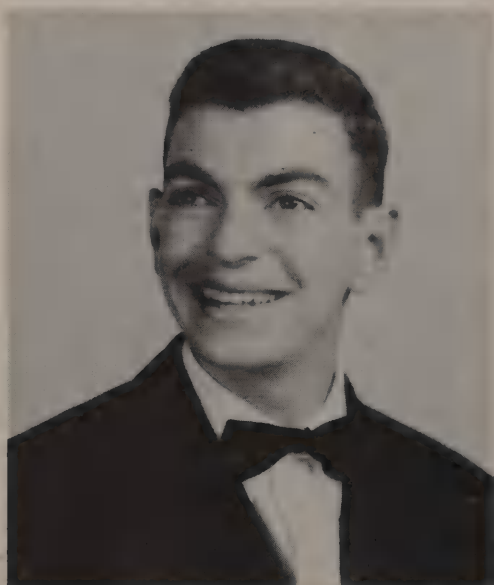

Favorite sport, baseball . . . favorite subject, history . . . toughest subject, physics . . . played freshman basketball and baseball . . . Jim was president of second and third year class . . . is noted for his remarks in class . . . member of that well known team "Moose's Monsters."

DONNELLY E. CALLSEN

Sodality 2, 3; K. B. S. 2, 3, 4; Duces 1, 2, 3, 4; St. Johns Berchmans 3; Debating 3; French Club 3; Baseball Acrions 1; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

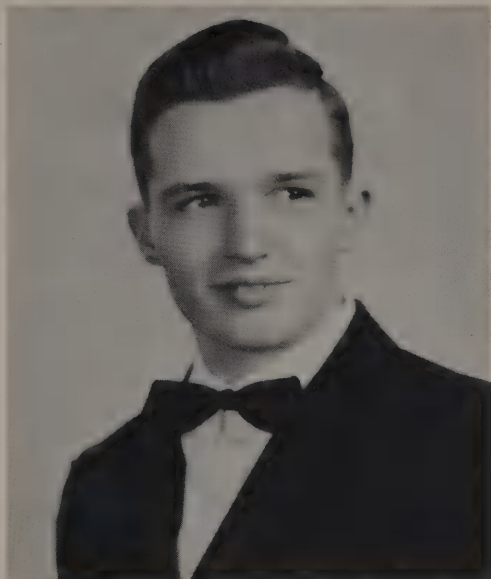

Famous for his bike rides to Detroit and Washington . . . Don claims he is stronger than steel, cause the bike broke down, but he didn't . . . Played basketball with 4 D's championship team . . . was sworn in as midshipman, and is going to New York State Maritime Academy in September . . . It's the navy life for Don.

FRANCIS I. CAMIOLO

Sodality and K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 1; St. John Berchmans 1, 3; Arena Yearbook 4; Science Club 4; German Club 3; Basketball Minims Manager 1; Baseball Minims 1; Baseball Crusaders 3, Captain; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

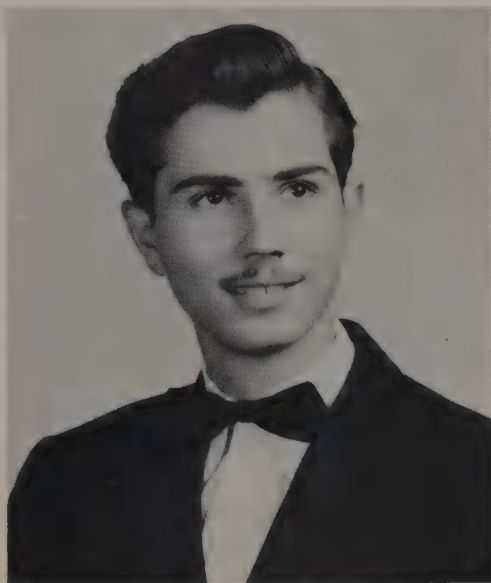

A student with good potentialities, Frank has managed to do well all through his four years . . . quiet, with a subdued sense of humor, Frank is popular with his classmates.

JAMES D. CAMPBELL

Sodality 4; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 4; St. John Berchamans 2, 3, 4; Football Minims 1.

Soupy . . . South Park Bigot . . . has established himself as an usher . . . may be head usher some day . . . sleeps like a log . . . guess what brand of soup is his favorite . . . quite proud of his seat in the back of the room.

LOUIS D. CANALE

Sodality 1, 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3; Debating 1, 2; Orchestra 1, 2; Dramatics 4; Intramurals 3, 4.

"Lovable Lou" . . . able accordionist . . . outstanding school spirit . . . well-groomed appearance bodes well for the future . . . a ready smile for one and all . . . ambitious almost to a fault . . . appreciative of the finer things in life.

EDWARD H. CANNATA

K. B. S. 1, 2; Football Minims 1; Baseball Minims 1; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4; Athletic Manager 1, 2, 3.

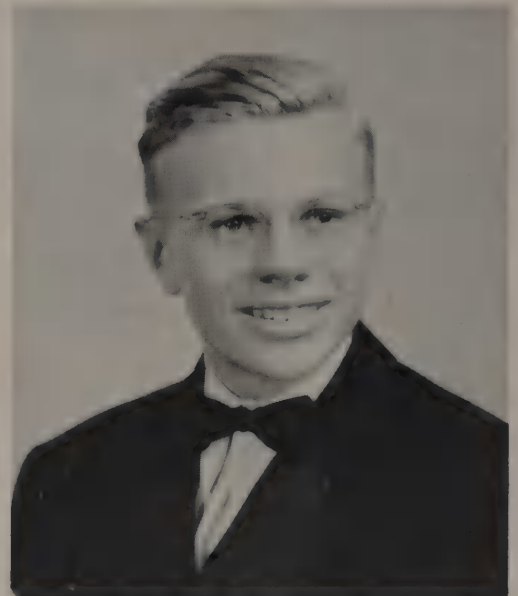

Primo Eoo . . . most natural comedian in the senior class . . . by popular demand he is urged to put on small acts during lunch in the smoking room . . . will pursue medicine at U. B. . . . plays the bass fiddle in class' favorite orchestra.

RICHARD F. CARR

Sodality 1, 2, 3, 4; K. B. S. and Duces 1, 4; St. John Berchmans 1, 2; Camera Club 1; German Club 3.

Well-known for his quietness in class . . . leaves school in a hurry . . . wonder why? . . . always seen chumming with a certain Mr. Zorn . . . studies hard . . . "Why do you guys always pick on me?"

FRANK D. CASPER

Sodality 2, 4; K. B. S. 3; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

Smiling, good-natured and friendly consistently . . . a ready wit, he is popular with his classmates . . . enjoys his contribution in the basketball intramurals . . . "Gee, Father, I wasn't doin' nothin'."

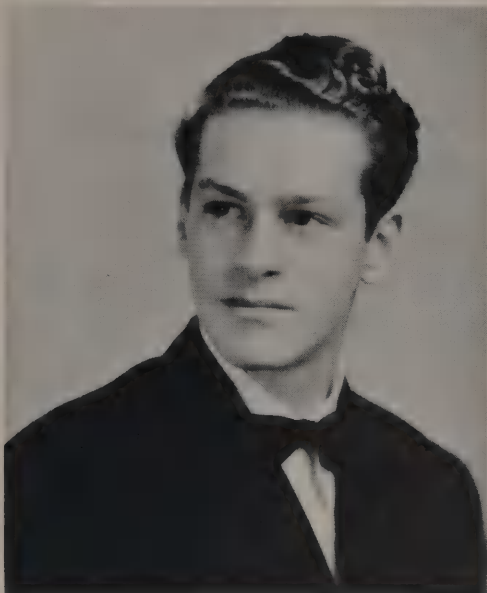

DONALD G. CHARLESWORTH

Sodality 3; K. B. S. 3, 4; Glee Club 4; French Club 3; Hockey Team 3, 4.

"Good Time Charlie" . . . funnyman of 4C . . . perpetually amusing . . . constant sling-shot warrior . . . insists he will be a comedian on Broadway some day . . . in his serious moments, a deadly hockey player.

ROBERT D. CHARLESWORTH

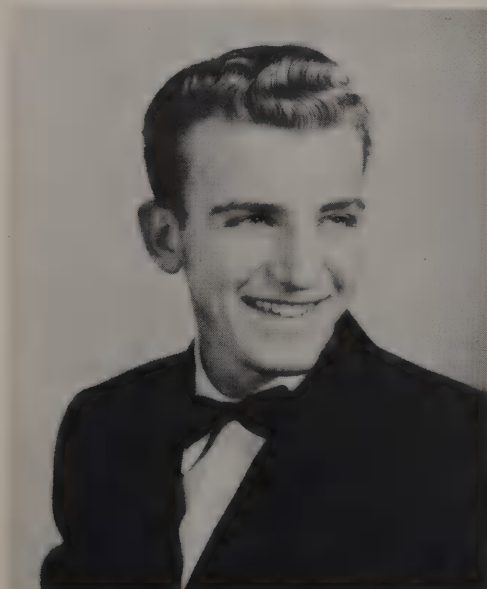

Sodality 2, 3; K. B. S. 2, 3, 4; Intramurals 2.

Charlie . . . wants to make Canisius co-ed . . . beat his brother out in class standings . . . likes to sing during school hours . . . the velvet frog.

VINCENT B. CHRIST

Sodality 1; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; Duces 1, 2; Student Council 1, 2; Debating 1, 2; Science Club 4; Basketball J. V. 3; Gold Medal 1; Class President 1, 2; Class Vice-President 3, 4.

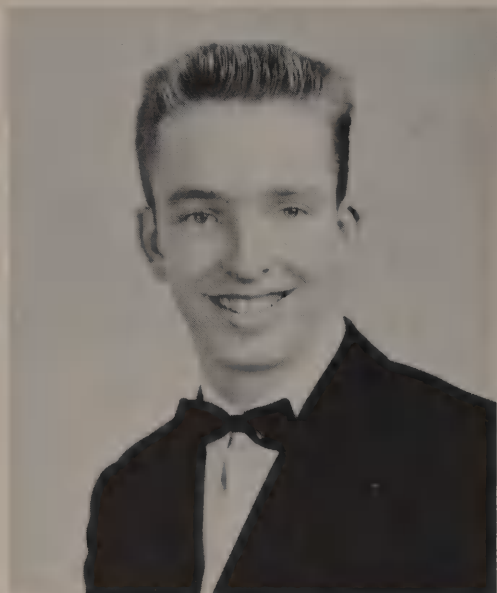

Rumored that "Big Vinnie" has the sleeping sickness . . . his high-pitched laughter drives teachers crazy . . . a good basketball player . . . once went three months without a Greek book . . . wouldn't be surprised if he brought a bed to school someday.

MICHAEL J. CIERI

Sodality 1, 2, 3; K. B. S. 3, 4; Duces 1; Class Secretary 3; Class Treasurer 4; Student Council 3; French Club 3.

Famous as treasurer of 4F . . . seen weekly trying to get the boys to part with a dime . . . known for his famous history marks . . . hardest subject, Chemistry . . . favorite year was his sophomore . . . likes sports, especially football.

THOMAS P. CLEARY

Burt . . . destined to be a Hoya . . . fiend for Cadillacs . . . hopes to be Georgetown's first All-American . . . wishes neon stop signs would be made . . . made All-Catholic in Everybody's Daily.

EDWARD P. COGHLAN

Sodality 1, 2; K. B. S. 3; Duces 4; French Club 3; Intramurals 2, 3.

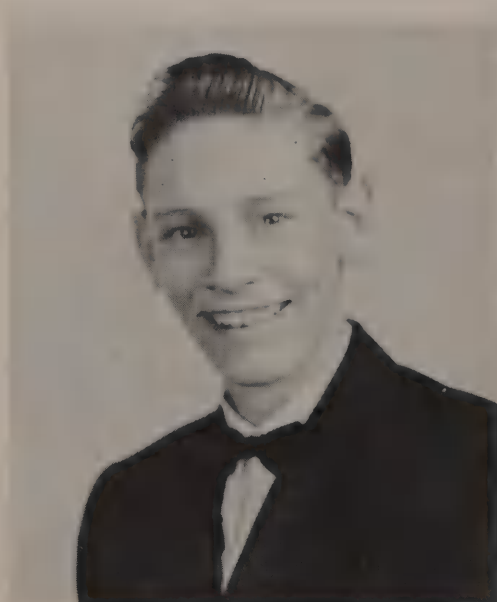

Ed is a rather slight lad but he has made his presence felt where ever he has gone by his jokes and funny remarks. He also proved to be quite a scrappy player in a Muny Basketball League. Very good student.

GEORGE E. CONSTANTINE

Sodality 1, 2, 4; K. B. S. 1, 2, 3, 4; St. John Berchmans 3; Camera Club 1, 2; Science Club 3; German Club 3; Intramurals 1, 2, 3, 4.

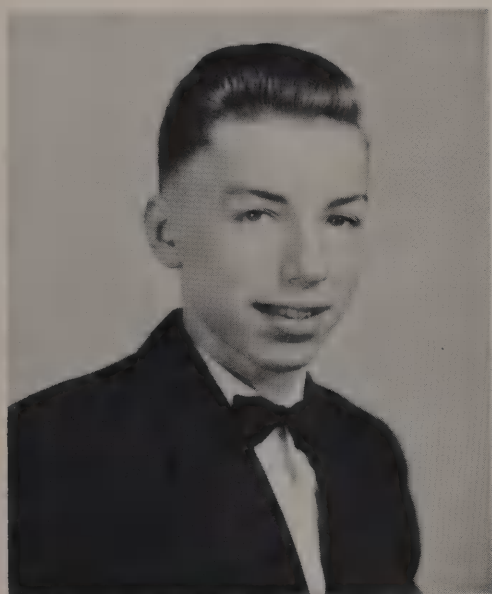

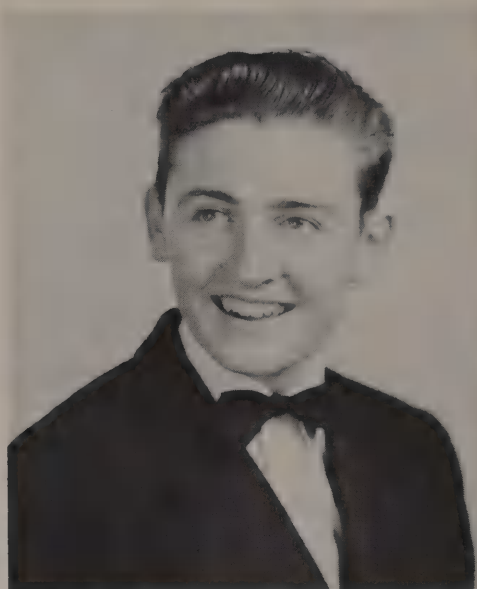

Wiggles . . . finally received his Gold Seal . . . can be found in smoking room when not in class . . . plays a lot of basketball at St. Vincents after school . . . famous for his tweed suit and his day-dreaming.

JOHN R. CORR

In Memoriam

JOHN WAGGONER

We, the Class of 1949, shall well remember that fateful Friday morning of April 16, 1948, when death took from our midst the immortal soul of John Waggoner. It seems only yesterday that John strode the echoing corridors of the school on Washington Street with us, always pleasant, always congenial. His simplicity, honesty, and fortitude were symbols of the greatness of his character.

John took great pride in his athletics and one of his many ambitions was to play basketball for his Alma Mater. Due to his illness, however, he was deprived of that ambition. He was also a loyal Sodalist and Knight of the Blessed Sacrament, and in his simple, unassuming way, he had achieved the union of the intellectual and physical and spiritual so difficult to obtain.

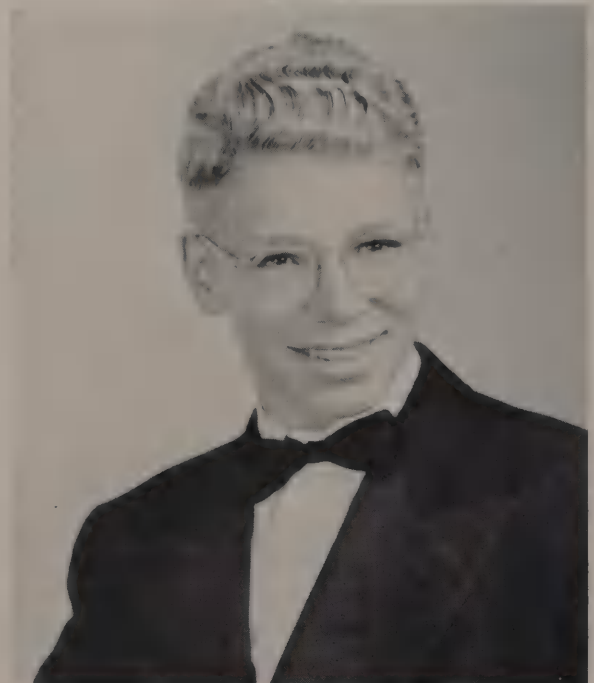

It is with sorrow that we finished our course here at Canisius, but we find consolation in the fact that we know he has finished the race before us and, please God, has won the goal of Heaven, towards which all of us are striving day by day.

JAMES HERDLEIN

It is with tearful but envious eyes that we, the Class of '49, look back upon the abrupt departure of "Ollie" Herdlein from our midst. We reflect tearfully because his death was the loss of a vital member of the school body, enviously, because he has graduated from a troubled world and is now attending "The Celestial School of Christ" and has already achieved the most yearned-for degree of All-Master of Truth and Perfect Happiness.

Although "Ollie" did not excel in athletics, he was a tower of strength in the cheering section at every contest and many were drowned in his bubbling enthusiasm. He was small in stature but his ever-present smile, his cordial greetings and his resolute character made him a giant among men.

We shall long remember "Ollie's" passing, because it differed in kind and degree from any we have hitherto experienced. God called him from his studies rather rudely to show him the truth but through this, "Ollie" attained the coveted goal to which all of us aspire. We sincerely hope that our remembrance, unspoken, though it be, may reach him where he lives.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

Back through the misty, cobwebbed passages of time, we are slipping to that age ago when, as hard as it is to believe, we were shy and awe-struck freshmen, to the time when we were caught in the meshes of Sophomore Latin and Caesar's sleep-provoking battles. Let us journey also to the not-too-long-ago when we struggled with Junior Math, the horrors of quadratics, the lairs of X again.

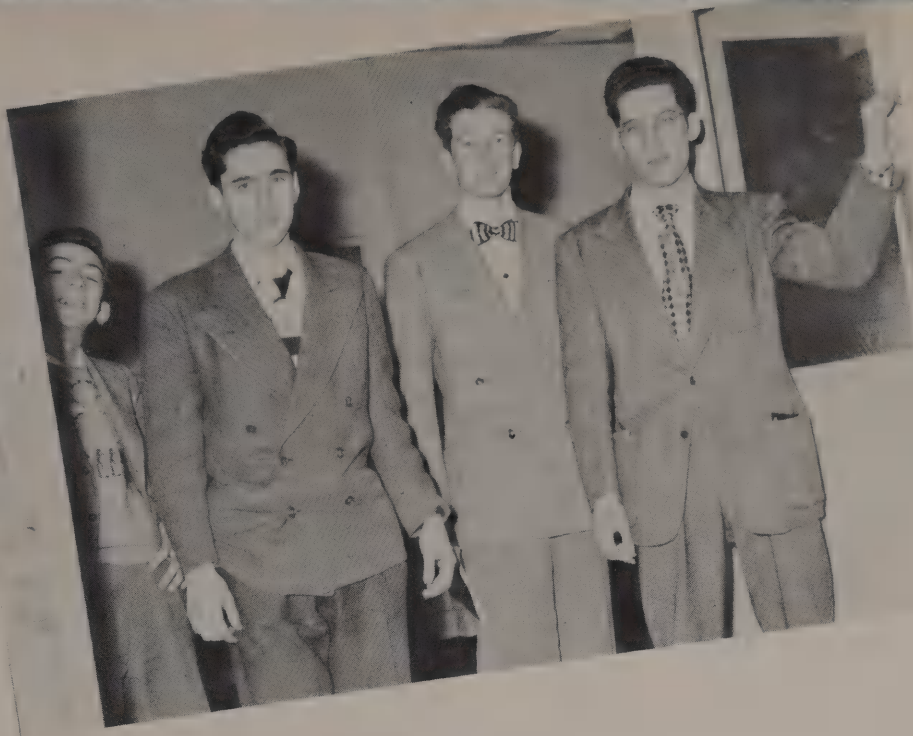

We have travelled the pathway once and we have reached the golden thresholds of our individual futures. But before we separate, let us walk the footworn halls again, back to the shades of . . .

Starry-eyed, a little bit swelled by pride, backed by astronomical marks in spelling and geography, we considered ourselves just about the most important things this side of heaven. For weeks we floated about on pink clouds of glory in a sea of bliss. We were on top of the world. We were Freshmen!

But one day a trap-door opened in our cloud and we awoke to the tragic realization of an enemy. We were pounced upon by "Jug," destined to be a constant threat.

After we were settled and had our first spiritual exercises, our retreat under the direction of Father Burns, we became aware of the terrifying fact that spelling and geography had faded with our sea of bliss, had evaporated with our pink clouds. We fell asleep each night to the monotonous chant of amo, amas, amat. We realized the unlimited potentialities of X. We met Jessica, the fair Jewess and her penny-pinching old man, Shylock. We were caught in the folds of Father McAleer's cape as he stood outside of school waiting to pounce on an unsuspecting prey.

After four months of toil, we were deemed worthy of our first sublime sacrifice, January exams. Then we promptly settled down to a peaceful nail-biting session, waiting for marks.

We returned after the term holiday, eager (?) to get back to work again. We were beginning to get used to our new school. By now we were active in the Sodality, with Bill Hall as our first prefect. Al Gunther and "Fritz" Kantowski sharing the honors as his assistants.

Every too often an edict would come from the office which condemned our worthless selves to the "dungeons." Here would we labor hard and long over the trials and tribulations of one Ivanhoe and the intricacies of the voting machine.

We experienced another "first" on the occasion of our initial Father and Son night. Don Diebold and his Dad tickling the ivories were the highlight of the evening.

Freshmen E had "E" for excellence on their wall but no one knew why or whence. And about that time, ear drums were bursting as Tap Avery, Jack McCracken and Will Muehlbauer played Gabriel in the Bugle and Drum Corps.

That winter everyone plowed through mountains of feathery flakes singing, "Let it snow! Let it snow! Let it snow!" And it did!

That was the time, in the dim past, in our awe-struck youth, when we were too dumb to notice the girls from Nardin.

And before we knew it, it was spring. Then the fateful days of June arrived and we looked on them none too joyfully, despite the promise of summer vacation. Exams! How easy they seem now! We waded through six days of mental torture and emerged on the day of reading of marks, somewhat the worse for wear. But after the verdict was rendered, with a few sighs of relief and some of grief, we bade farewell, for a time to our Alma Mater to return in . . .

A little reluctantly, a little expectantly, we returned to our desks at Canisius. But our status was marvelously changed. The former sophomores had departed for the Washington Street school and left us in sole charge of brow-beating the Freshmen and removing the starry look from their eyes. But soon (within ten months) our feeling of superiority left us.

Our second retreat was under the capable direction of Father Paone and after this moving spiritual exercise, we settled down (somewhat) to the business at hand. We traipsed around the wilds of Gaul, hard on the heels of a sleep-provoking Julius Caesar, but we were jarred out of our reveries by the titanic rumble of the steam shovel, digging the foundation for the new school and the ear-splitting ripping of a power saw. It sounded like high noon in a boiler factory. But the sound meant nothing to us during our Geometry periods. This was our easiest and most interesting Math year. But woe to the unfortunate soul who interrupted a Geometry class with his antics. He automatically became a member of Father Fleming's Theorem Twenty-six Writing Society—two hundred times and you were president for the day. Jack Post was permanent president!

We were often called upon to perform unusual tasks—for instance, we were requested (If we valued our lives!) on the performance of any misdeed, to wear out the marble floors of the foyer. It didn't exactly build up the feet either! Jug! It was here to stay. We just had to adjust ourselves to it.

In our sophomore year, a few of our brethren succeeded in making Varsity teams. Jack Enders and Tom Hogan were keeping things "on ice" with the hockey team. We ruled the Swimming Team, probably because of our undisputed possession of the important factor, the pool. Art Gross and Ed O'Neil were our emissaries on the gridiron.

In this year the moguls of the moldy manuscripts were Joe Friel, Ted Downing and Chuck Salter, who answered our literary problems with a helpful "I don't know."

Along about this time we began to take to the dance floor and ruined many a dainty shoe with our attempts at tripping the light fantastic to "Heartaches."

One sophomore class, in sympathy for a dishonorably discharged brother, went into mourning over his departure from our exalted midst. All members dolefully trooped in, creped in black, lamenting, and bedecked his desk in funeral array. It didn't have the desired effect on the faculty.

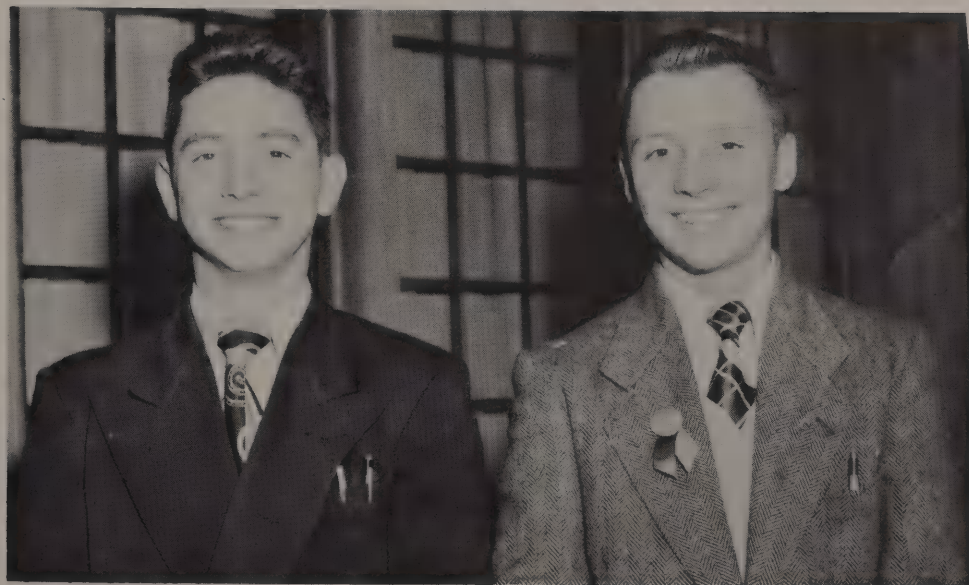

In this year, we met the plaything of fate, the fabulous Jean Valjean. No matter how he tried, old Jean usually came out on the short end. Others of our number encountered a still more unbelievable creature in Til Eulenspiegel and his incredible tricks. Again we encountered J. Caesar, Esq., in our English course and exulted that our Latin tormentor met not too pleasant a death. It was rather sadistic but . . . !

Sophomore year gave us our first taste of Dramatics with a night of four one-act plays. Pulling down the laurels for the second year men were Dave Evans, Bob Meyers, and Dan Lenahan.

The year was slipping by very fast. Winter came and went and with it Locus, Sohrab and Rustum, and the Gallic War. Again, the dread shadow of Province exams fell over our cheery countenances and, as before, we began the long and tedious process of review and cramming. But they sailed by us, and to our utter astonishment, the majority of our select group emerged on the sunny side of sixty-five. It may not have been too bright, but still, it was the sunny side! And joyfully we poured forth through these hallowed portals to the awaiting arms of summer vacation until September and . . .

Our triumphant return to Canisius in 1947 was made not to the Delaware school, but to the old school on Washington Street. The building might have been somewhat dusty and crumbling but to us there was more of Canisius in those musty halls than anywhere else. There tradition reigned supreme. We were infected by the spirit of the school and school became more than a place to spend the six hours of class time. No longer did we yearn so ardently for the day's end so that we might hop the first bus homeward. The "2:40" club was dissolved and our mothers began to wonder what kept us at school. It was school spirit! We were getting a little more serious, not solemn by any means, but we knew when to draw the line between humor and important business. We were beginning to notice the significance of a good education. We were beginning to notice those girls from Nardin. In short, we were growing up.

Again, our year commenced with a three-day treat of a retreat under the masterful direction of Father Dolan. After this religious beginning, we set out on the none-too-smooth path we were to follow for the next ten months. Many an aspirin was summoned to the rescue of brains, aching from quadratics and progressions! In Rome, we encountered that unutterable blackguard, Lucius Sergius Catiline and his impeccable (so he told us) prosecutor, Marcus Tullius Cicero. Furthermore, we branched out into the line of Latin poetry, to Dædalus and Icarus, the father-and-son combination that could fly circles around the Wright Brothers. Our hearts were broken by the beautiful Andromeda and turned to stone by the ugly face of Medusa with the snaky locks. We shed copious tears (crocodile, to be sure) because we were deprived of the broadening influence of Willie Shakespeare, Esq. In French, we spent many a happy hour with M. de Beaufort, a sophisticated copy of Jean Valjean (all we get is jailbirds!) and in German, we sauntered through Das geheimnisvolle Dorf which bore a striking resemblance to the town in the musical comedy "Brigadoon."

We branched out into science and the perplexing tongue of ancient Greece. One day, one of the janitors came up to the Chem Lab and presented a piece of paper, covered with white powder and said: "Is this hyar the Chemistry room? Ah found this." Upon a glance, Mr. Spengler grabbed it from his hands and raced wildly to dump it in the sink. It was white sulphur which explodes at room temperature. And then there was the time when we were all shocked by a column in the newspaper which said Father Egan had almost blown the roof off during an experiment. We marched through the mystic land of Persia with Cyrus to Babylon, always three days' journey, twenty parasangs and walked around proudly reciting alpha, beta, gamma, delta . . . to the wonderment of our classmates.

The faculty seemed more like friends than superiors. Arch Harter's face would turn crimson under the taunts of Father McMahon. Father Clarkson devoured ice cream with us while proctoring in the cafeteria. Father Lutz was eager to have his classes "get that memory up." Jug didn't seem such a burden with Father Quinn as Prefect of Discipline.

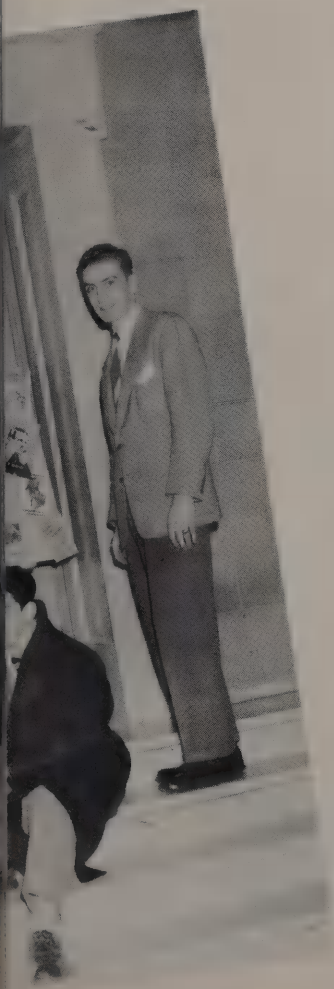

After our January exams we returned to studies and immediately sank into the quagmire of Trigonometric equations and logarithms. We leered at Catiline again and met Midas, a penny pincher who made Shylock look sick.

Yes, there were more memories in that one year than these meager pages can hope to embrace. It seemed that no matter how impossible our situation, how difficult our problem, how indefinite our "jug," we always had time for a laugh. Whenever some earth-shattering problem came up, there was always something to laugh at hard on its heels. There may be some who will say they were glad to get out of Third year, but there is no one who can say he didn't enjoy it.

Again the suffering season came around and we endured the tortures of cramming once more. But this time, our goal was slowly coming into view. We completed our exams, left French and German behind us at Washington Street and ascended the last golden step to graduation, our . . .

SENIOR YEAR: 1948-1949

Again we were on top of the world. Again we were floating on pink clouds! But this time, nothing could bring us down to earth. We were Seniors! We were to be the first class to graduate from the new school! And what a school it was! To its sparkling halls we were as green as the shiest freshman but that didn't last too long. Venimus, vidimus, vicimus! We took over the position of all-exalted rulers and official brow-beaters of all underclassmen. Gone was the privilege the Sophomores had exercised. We were "it."

After our retreat, given by Father Braun, we began our trek down the "last mile." Along the way, we passed the ancient cities of Troy and Carthage in the company of Pius Aeneas. Again, we were awed by the harangues of Cicero, only this time he was pouring the poison on someone else. We dashed madly, back and forth, between Paris and London with Sidney Carton (alias Charles Evremonde, alias Ronald Coleman) and wracked our feeble brains trying to figure out why every freely falling body had to fall thirty-two feet per second per second.

We assumed the leadership of the school officially when John O'Connor took up his duties as President of the Student Council. Later in the year, Bernie Kennedy snagged the post of Behrens president while "Boogie" Hens took the helm of the Science Club. This year the ancient enmity between Canisius and St. Joseph's Collegiate was resumed with greater intensity than ever with the renewal of the gridiron rivalry. Russ Rosati, ably assisted by such stalwarts as Earl Scheelar, Marty Vecere and Don Diebold, of the magic toe, managed to waltz off with the honors and also copped half-a-share of the league trophy. Captained by John O'Connor and backed up by Dick Laux and Ted Wojcinski, the varsity quintet snagged a portion of the three-way tie for league champs. After four St. Joe's games in one year, the entire student body was a nervous wreck.

Another revival was the resumption of the annual Shakespearean play with laurels going to Ned Nolan, a wonderful Antony, and a sophomore, Don Swanz, who played a marvelous Brutus, for their re-creation of the murder of Julius Caesar, ably portrayed by Dick Romanowski. The play was a grand success, and the cast received all the credit it deserved, with Dan Sullivan and a mighty mite of a Freshman, Eric Barth, as Portia, out-doing themselves among others too numerous to mention.

Still another first, The Citadel, our new newspaper, rolled off the presses, with the name of Jack Kraus nailed to the masthead, as first editor of the sheet.

January exams came and went and with the usual horrifying effect, but we returned again with the habitual innovations to new fabulous characters. Through countless lines and spirits we struggled with Aeneas and the Sibyl to the underworld and the realms of Pluto. (No relation!) The former followers of Xenophon were now following a new leader. With him we ventured again into the land of Priam, but this time through the medium of Greek to see the other side of the story! Physics! We were still trying to fathom the stuff! Why this? What that? Why? Why? Why? But our crowning glory was English and Macbeth. Everyone crawled under the desks for fear they would be forced to read the speeches of Lady Macbeth.

There is not enough space to give credit to all those who deserve it, for expending their time and toil in order that our class of Forty-Nine might progress along its path. So many members of the faculty have smoothed out the rough spots for us that it is impossible to adequately express our gratitude. So many of our fellow "Forty-Niners" have brought glory on every individual activity of the school that it is impossible to praise them all within the space of these short pages. To the "Forgotten Men" as well as to those who have shared the limelight, are due our heartfelt thanks.

Now, here we stand on the threshold of life. Our way has been made easier by the companionship of the many staunch friends we have met in our stay at Canisius. Now the road we have traveled together branches off into myriad paths and we must walk on in the company of new friends. Here at the commencement of life is the termination of our high school days. But the friendships we have welded in these four years will never leave us. For, we have worked, played, and laughed together for four long, happy years. When we are but shades, roaming the halls of our Alma Mater, the bond that linked us together will be then as strong, in a word, will be the spirit we made part of ourselves here.

CANISIUS ALMA MATER

Canisius, Alma Mater,
The glory of thy name,
Thy wisdom strong we sing as long
As memories remain.

Thy voice is mighty,
Linking our years,
Mighty thy memories
Through hopes, joys, and fears.

Canisius, mighty power,
Thy sons keep true and bold
Their love for thy honor,
Canisius, Blue and Gold.

Sodality Sponsors Three Pilgrimages

Our Lady of Victory Basilica was the scene of another of the Junior Sodality's pilgrimages when they marched there from Holy Family Church the Saturday before Christmas. Last Saturday was also a busy day for Freshman and Sophomore soladities as they visited the cribs of various churches throughout the city.

BECHT REACHES ZONE FINALS

Delivering his speech at State Teachers' College on February 20, in the district finals of the American Legion Oratorical Contest, Ronald Becht, Canisius' representative, won second place and the right to compete in the Zone finals at Batavia High School two weeks later. First place was awarded to William Gardner of Alexander Central High School.

At Batavia on March 6, Ronnie placed third amidst some very stiff competition. Harry Warr of Penn Yan Academy, who spoke in Legion competition last year, carried off the first honors, and William Gardner the second place. Only the winner and runner-up qualify

J.V. Boasts Record of 12 Wins, 1 Loss

Our J. V. was the glory of Canisius as they won their game against the St. Joe's J. V. With 16 points Dick Stockman was the undisputed high scorer. Zenger and Maier were particularly notable for their set shots. The final score was 41-33.

Canisius J. V. slaughtered Annunciation J. V. by a score of 58-16. They held their opponents to a single counter in the second quarter and three points in the fourth. They shot from all angles. They stole the ball and seemed to score at will. One big surprise came as the totals were summarized at the end of the game. Although Annunciation had only 18 points they had the high scorer of the game. Charles Dietrich, who had 10 points, outshot Manning and Zenger who had eight

The C-O-D J. V. remained undefeated as they beat Holy Angels by a score of 35-17. The low score was due to the tight zone defense set up by the Blue Wings. Dick Stockman played another great game and led the game in scoring with 12 points.

Tex Williams led the scorers as Neumann bowed to a score of 45-9. Canisius held the opposition to one point in the second and third frames. Father Mahoney cleared the bench as the JV sailed along to maintain their undefeated status.

Canisius JV traveled to Lockport and set back DeSales by a score of 29-10. Why the low score? Maybe because despite their usual high average they only hit for a little better than a third of their shots. Canisius worked an air-tight defense. George Zenger played a stellar defensive game and led

3E OUTBOWLS 3G IN LEAGUE FINAL

The Fall Bowling League came to a pin-smashing close when 3E whitewashed 3G to take the top league honors. In the first game 3E upended their fellow Juniors by a margin of 139 pins. Despite their long, sustained power drive in the second game, 3G went down by 39 points. Dan Rydzewski of 3E was top scorer with total of 180 hit in the second game. 3E thereby closed its books with a 12-win, 2-loss record.

The winners in the other leagues were 4B, 11 wins against 3 losses, 2A with 14 and 2 (the season's best), and 1C with 14 and 4.

At the close of the first league, 13 men stand out in the battle of the pins as Varsity material. "President" of the "175 Club" is Don Leopold, 4D, with a solid 203, followed by Don Braun, 3E, the close runner-up, with 201.

Future plans feature the possibility of entering self-chosen teams in an American Legion league, but as yet nothing definite has been decided upon by Father Persich.

Other top pin-tumblers are Earl Scheelar 4B 195, Louie Canale 4C

W. Schaefer President Of Soph Debaters

On Wednesday, Feb. 9, the Sophomore Debating Society held at long last an election of officers. After the votes had been counted it was announced that Bill Schaefer was elected president; Frank Fitch, vice-president; Charlie Horlak, secretary, and Ted Callisto, treasurer. The elections were held under the supervision of Father Barry, the society's

Buchheit Chosen Sodality Prefect

This year's officers of the Sophomore Sodality have been announced by Moderator Father Sturtzer, Rudy Buchheit was chosen to be the Prefect, with James Reilly and John Labinski as his first and second assistants. At their last meeting they led the Sophomores in the recitation of the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin, and discussed the coming Sodality Symposium, which this year will concern the Holy

Soph Debaters Vie For League Team

All the current activities of the Sophomore debaters are centered about the society's fond hope of entering the forthcoming Forensic League Competition. There have been numerous round-table discussions and practice debates on the league's topic "The Nations of the World Should Unite in a Federal World Government." They are calculated to help Father Barry, the society's moderator, choose the Sophomore entrants for the competition.

Practice Debate

One such practice debate was held on December 22, '48, during the society's last meeting before the Christmas holidays. Under the competent chairmanship of Dick Ratke, the debate ran smoothly. The affirmative was handled by Michael Moga, Jim Riley and Sam Rumbalo. Their opponents on the negative were Charlie Horlak, Tom Conboy and Paul Schumacher. After an enthusiastically heated argument, the affirmative won, and Sam

"Basketball" League In Full Swing

Intramural basketball scores turned in during the past few weeks are beginning to show trends one way or another. The 4B basketekers walked off with top honors in the Senior Division, not, however, without the scalps of some never-say-die opponents hanging from their belts. In the Junior Division, 2A sets the pace with IF a close second. 2E and 1E stand in a strong position as this league, a little slow in weighing anchor, progresses.

From the viewpoint of the innocent bystander, some eyebrows might well be raised at the propriety of such an array of blocks, tackles, straight-arms and what-have-you on the floor boards. Straining to give them a good intention, he might even recall that "Western Rules" must here hold sway. After all, this is Western New York, isn't it?

What with snow about to cover the blacktop, and the gyms taxed to capacity, it might well be that the next few games will decide the league

CANISIUS MARCHING SONG

Canisius! Canisius!

When the battle rages strong,

We'll cheer, men! We'll fight, men!

Though the struggle's hard and long.

With shoulder to shoulder

As Crusaders stout and bold,

We will pledge ourselves to conquer,

For Canisius Blue and Gold.

So, sing, men, and swing, men,

Till the bands no longer play!

With arms linked, and hearts linked,

In our old Canisius way.

Forever, forever,

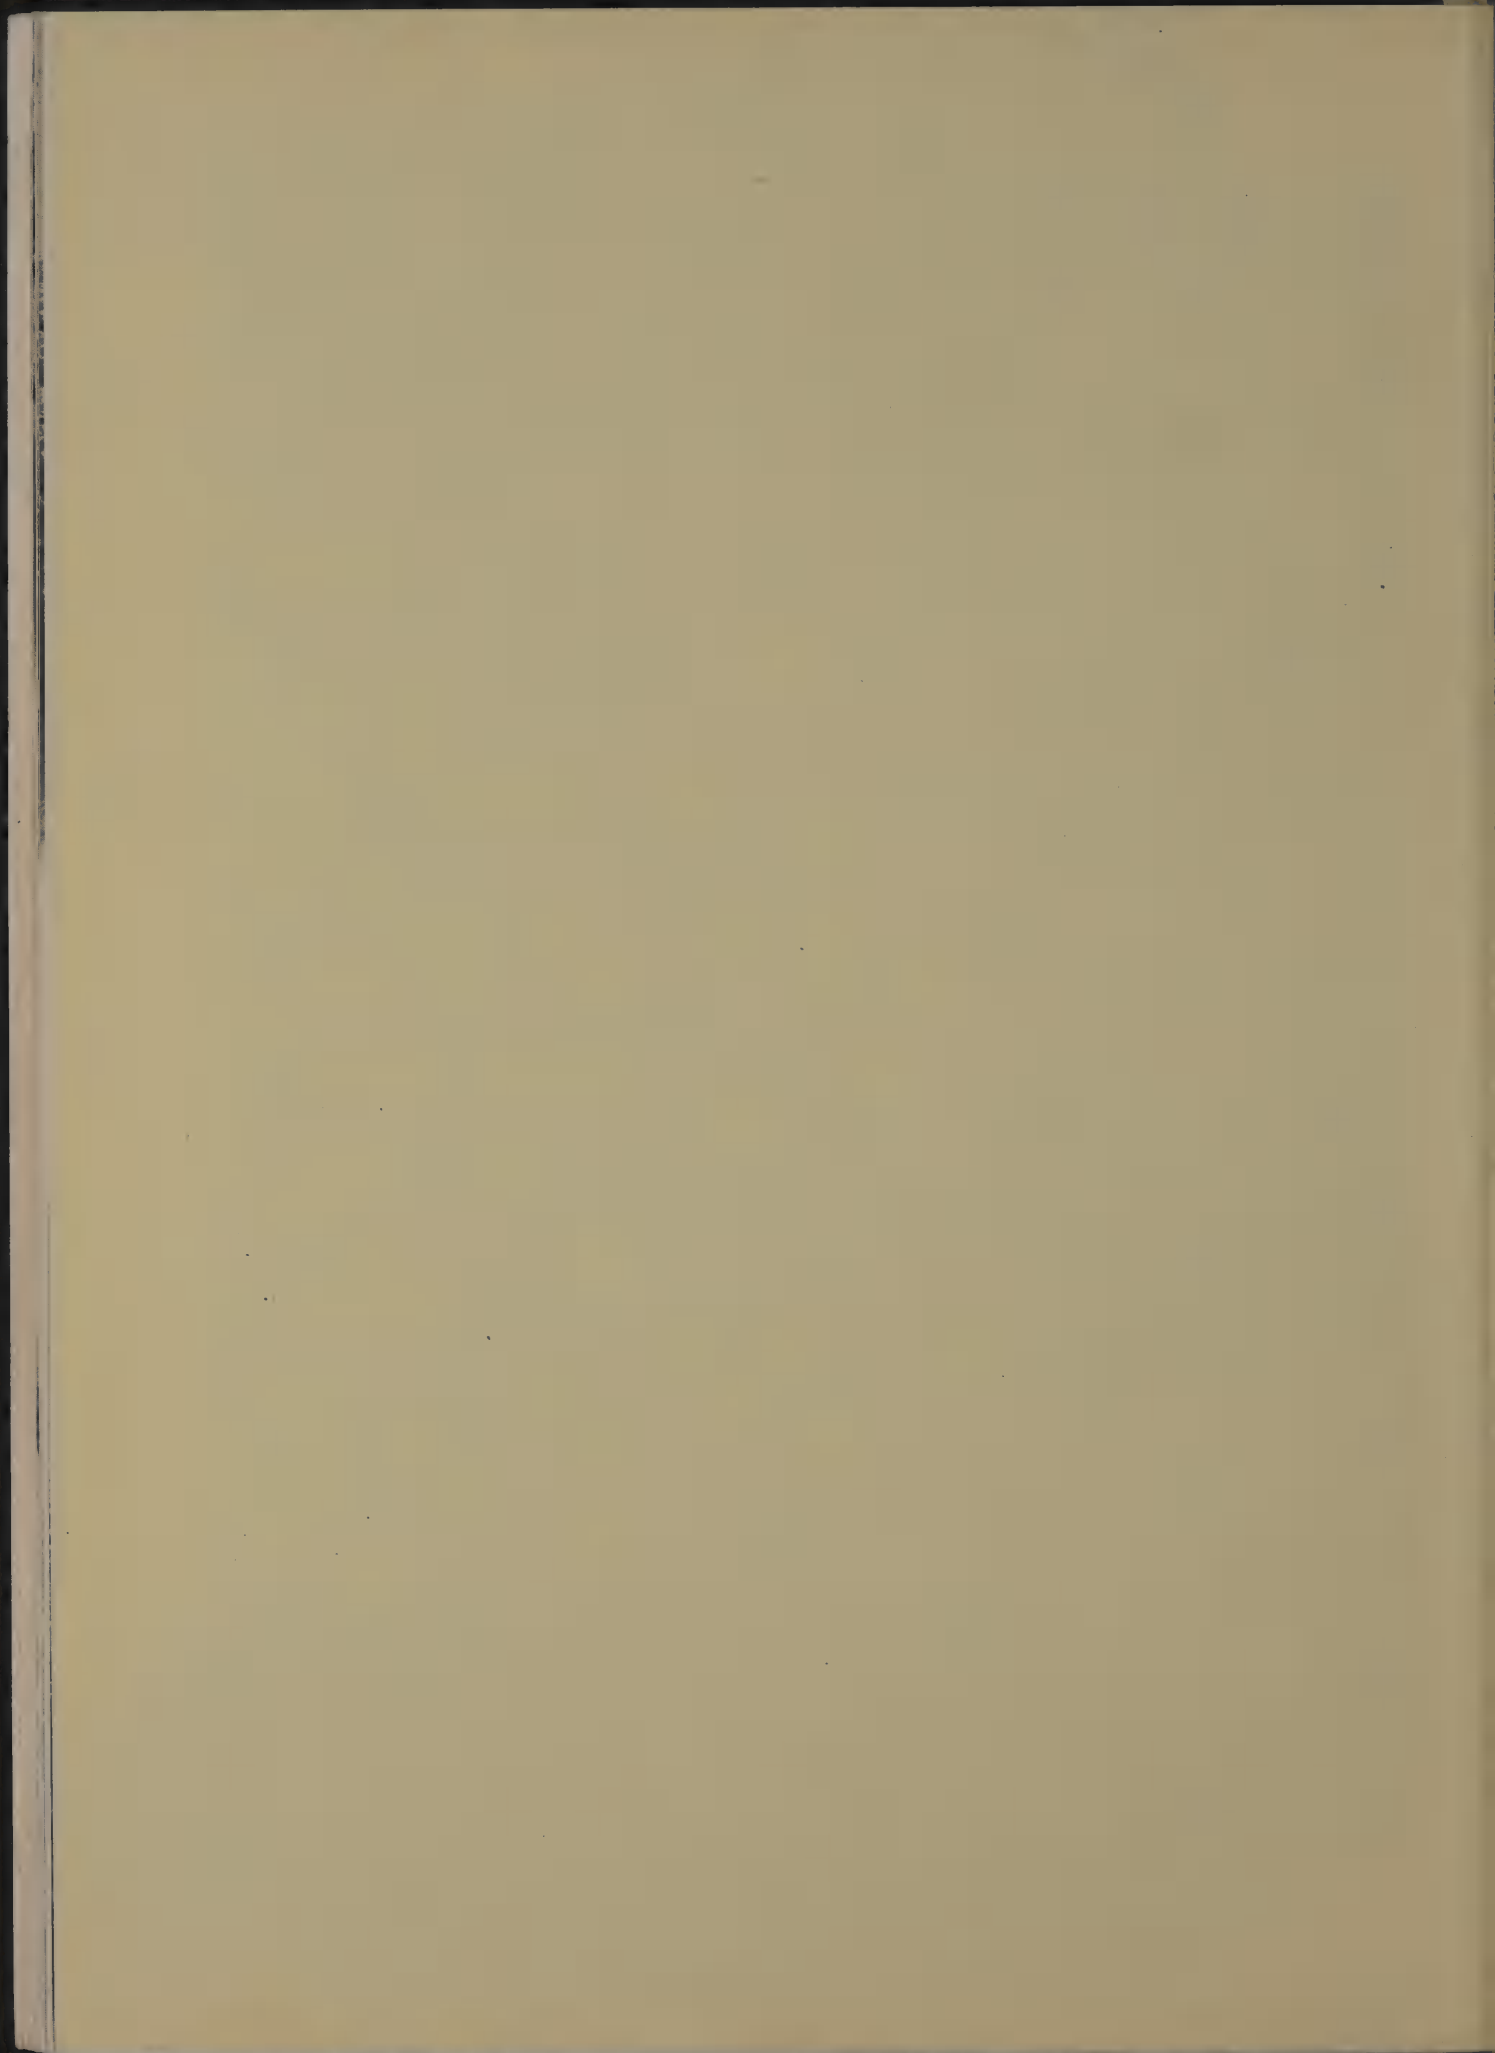

Till the dying sunset's flame,

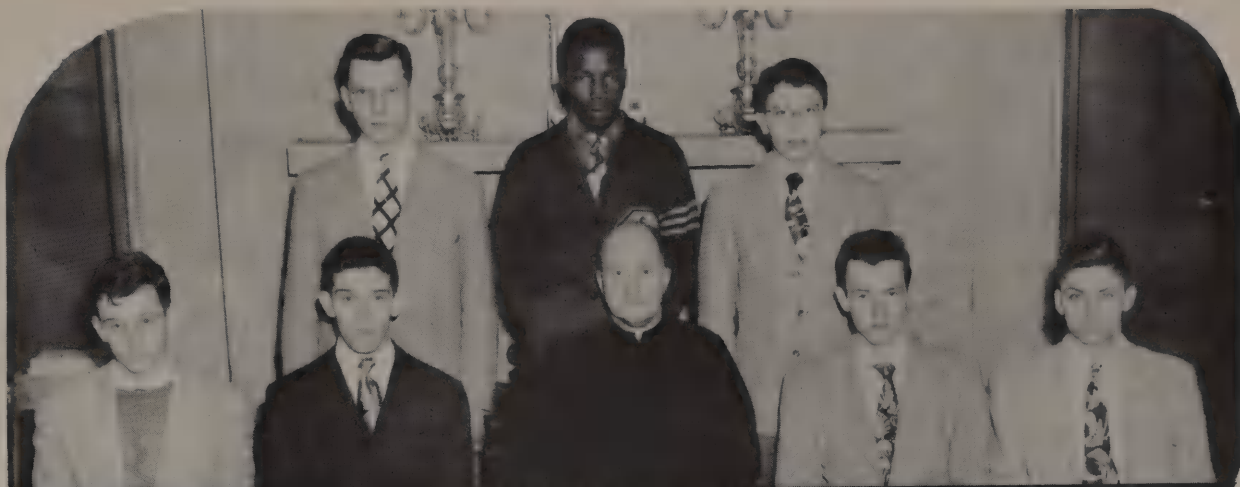

Till the last, faint glowing ember,

Sing the glory of her name.

SODALITY (SENIOR JUNIOR)

Almost as old and almost as revered as the school itself, the Sodality has made an indelible impression on the hearts and souls of the men who have gone from out the hallowed walls of Canisius. Our Lady, through her sodality, has placed her seal of approval on her sons and they have proven themselves worthy of her trust. In Canisius, the sodality holds undisputed supremacy over all other activities.

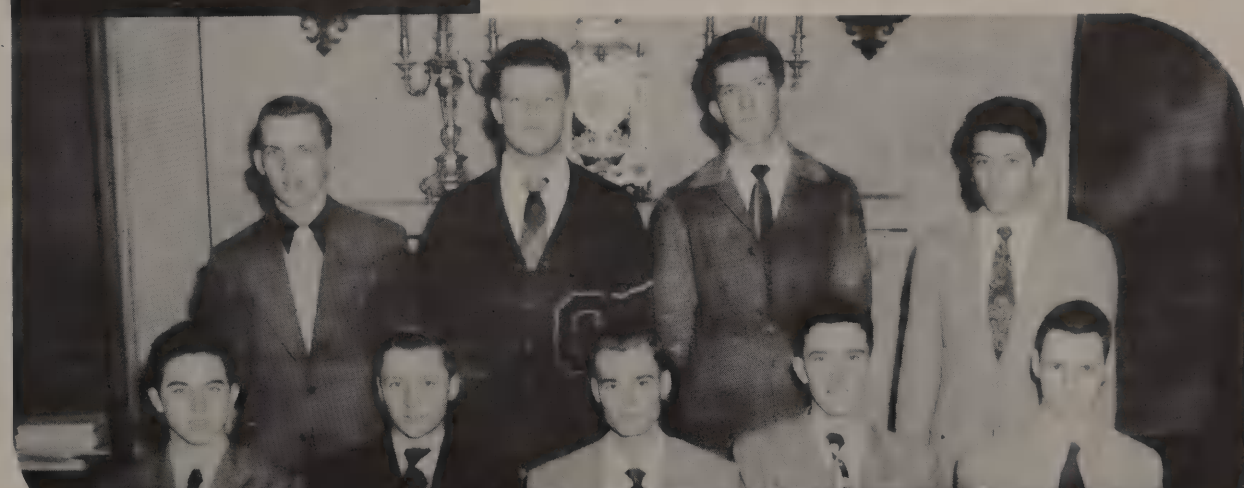

At Christmas the Sodalists filled every available container with bread, vegetables and canned goods, purchased with money obtained in the mite boxes. These were delivered by the Sodalists to the poor.

In April, Canisius was host to the Western New York Sodality Symposium under the direction of Father Sturtzer. Father Cantillon, an alumnus, spoke on the Mass.

Here is an organization of which Canisius can boast without reserve.

It is an awe-inspiring sight to see the reception of three hundred boys into the Sodality. There is certain feeling of importance, and rightly so, to being a member of this venerable group. The Freshmen and Sophomores are just as interested in their Sodality as their older brothers.

When the scapular is placed on a shoulder it leaves with the Sodalist an eternal membership in the brotherhood of the world in which all of Mary's children, no matter what race or nationality, are equal brothers.

Rather sleepy-eyed every morning, the faithful members of the Dukes Club arrived in the basement chapel. The "Leaders" receive Holy Communion three times a week and on Sundays. The little blue and gold pin in any Canisius man's lapel is a sign that he is an outstanding exponent of his school, that he has given up that little extra sleep to rise and go to Mass almost every morning of the week, and that he is more than fulfilling his obligations to his Church.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Tuesday afternoons found the class presidents and the heads of the various activities grouped somewhat noisily in 3D classroom. Promptly at three, the meeting began with a prayer by the president John O'Connor. Minutes were read by Secretary "Fritz" Kantowski and always "accepted as read." Rather gruesome arguments were waged over such problems as whether the incoming Freshmen should be forced to wear caps at all school activities. This measure was not only voted down but vetoed by the all powerful vote of the school authorities.

There was more than a group of boys in Student Council. It was a union of the classes with everyone having as much right and authority as the other. Frank Sullivan and his radical class of Four F usually proposed the most worthwhile measures. Bernie Kennedy and Bill Hall kept up the debate, resorting almost to pitched battles. No matter what subject was being discussed they always seemed to have opposite views.

A running joke in the council was the fact that "Red" was always asked at three-thirty to make a motion to adjourn. He got so used to it that after a few months it was an acknowledged fact that he would close the meeting, but he still blushed every time he was asked.

Sweeter than the finest jasmine, the odor of grease paint pervaded the air. It was wafted under our dramatic nostrils and we were infected by its perfume. For the first time in many years, the Canisius High School Dramatic Society tackled the immortal bard of Avon. Tryouts were held and many orating Anthonys and pleading Brutuses emoted with expectant hearts. But only a few could be picked, parts were assigned, and the work begun.

At rehearsals they forgot their lines, they didn't have the memory up, they didn't talk loud enough, they laughed when they shouldn't have. In short they tried Father Dolan's patience to the breaking point. They performed seemingly idiotic voice exercises and laughed at their mistakes, which meant they were laughing just about all the time. But on the fatal night, cheered somewhat by the result of the nuns' performance, they faced the paying public on the other side of the footlights and left them exceedingly satisfied.

Again Julius Caesar walked the echoing streets of Rome, stalked by the grim figures of the conspirators. With the capable direction of Father Dolan, Dick Romanowski, as the mighty conqueror, managed to elude the pursuers until the third act, when he was thoroughly and dramatically dealt with.

As the well-meaning and misled Brutus, Don Swanz played the hero to the hilt. His booming bass pleaded his love for Caesar but thundered his indignation at his ambition. It takes a good actor to perform in scenes that require extraordinary emotion but it takes a better one to play a "straight" scene. But to do both . . . magnificent is about the closest adjective.

Loyal to the dictator, Mark Antony, most capably handled by Ned Nolan, wept over the mangled corpse of the master of Rome and rebuked the fickle crowd which cheered his murderers. Beyond a doubt, Ned stirred everyone with his funeral harangue " . . . now lies he here and none so poor to do him reverence." Stupendous, to put it mildly.

A good deal of credit must go to two men who braved the pros-

Father Dolan explaining to Cassius how to draw his sword.

Caesar (Dick Romanowski)
"Cowards die many times before their deaths."

Brutus (Don Swanz), Cassius (Bill O'Malley) and Caesar (Dan Sullivan)

pect of taunts and laughter to portray women. Joe Rice as Calpurnia and Eric Barth as Portia, two outstanding contributions.

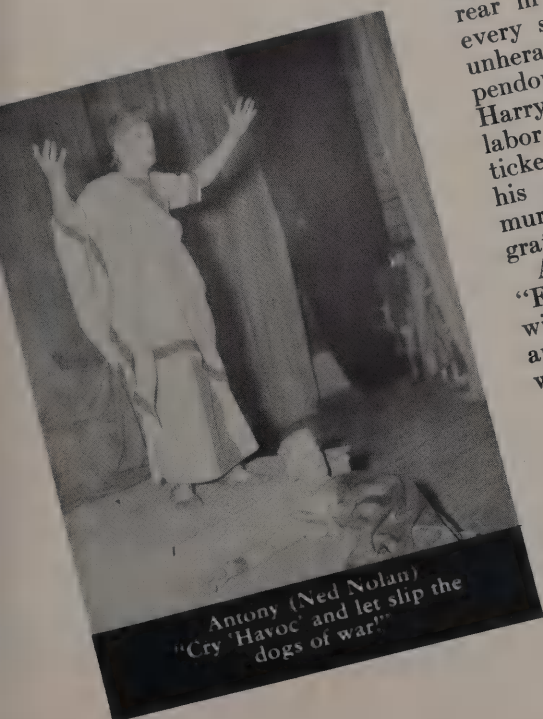

Sharing stellar honors with the others was Dan Sullivan as the somewhat corpulent Casca. He only had to lean back, sagely pat his stuffed stomach and the audience was rolling in the aisles. Also Mike McNulty, decked in a white wig and whiskers, wailed a prophetic warning to the overconfident Caesar, "Beware the Ides of March!"

But although only a few won large parts and landed a spot under "dramatis personae," certainly the play could not have begun to be a success without the bit parts and the extras, those little guys that got shoved to the rear in all the pictures and in every scene. To the toil of the unheralded thespians, to the stupendous job done by Father Harry Boyle and his crew and the labor of Father Stokes and his ticket committee, Julius Caesar, his wife, his friends and his murderers owe a great debt of gratitude.

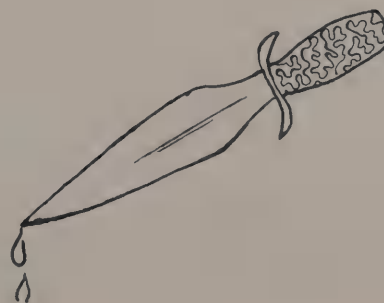

And when we are all dust again, "Friends, Romans, countrymen!" will still be echoing in the rafters and the ghost of Julius Caesar will trod the boards once more.

Antony (Ned Nolan)
"O mighty Caesar! Dost thou lie so low!"

Antony (Ned Nolan)
"Cry 'Havoc' and let slip the dogs of war!"

"So are they all, all honorable men!"

STAGE CREW

The highest praise is due the stage crew of Julius Caesar. Tirelessly they toiled to exhume the stage from its burial place in the dust. Every afternoon after school they could be found hammering and lifting and tugging in the auditorium with Father Harry Boyle up to his elbows in dust just like the rest of them. Lugging carpets and hanging curtains, building props and fixing lights they worked like slaves without complaint. The men in this picture gladly gave up their time for the dramatic society. On the night of the play they ran back and forth, changing sets almost noiselessly, regulating lights and curtain like experts. They handled the show without a flaw. We proudly salute these unseen, unsung heroes of our Shakespearean production.

BUSINESS STAFF

Here is another group that gave up their afternoons for the success of the play. The men behind the ticket. Every P. M. there was some one of these men in the foyer selling tickets and on the night of the play, the same ready hands sold tickets and handled the cash end of the play. Some of them gave up their time as ushers, the men who always miss the first act. Plenty of credit must be given to these custodians of the pasteboards.

DEBATORS

The Behrens Debating Society under the leadership of its president, Bernard Kennedy, and with the guidance of its moderator, Father Farrand, scored important successes this year. Forty debaters engaged in thirty-three interscholastic debates. Canisius defeated top-notch teams from Aquinas in Rochester, St. Michael's in Toronto, Xavier in New York, and Canisius College Freshmen, while twenty simultaneous debates were held with Jamestown High School. For the first time in many years, Canisius teams travelled to New York. After defeating Xavier and tying Regis, a few days of sightseeing in the Big City was a welcome reward to the tired debaters, Dick Romanowski, Gene Zimpfer and Michael J. McNulty. Never before have so many Canisius men engaged in so many debates.

Two of Father Barry's Sophomore teams scored victories over skilled Jamestown debaters.

ORATORS

Oratory, under the guidance of Father Paone, did much to enhance the glory of Canisius this year. Ronald Becht, a Junior, went as far as the zone finals in the American Legion Oratorical Contest, proving that Canisius has the best orator, not only in Buffalo but in Erie County. Donald Swanz, Joseph Valenti, John O'Connor, and Mike McNulty were also prominent in oratory this year.

Ronald Becht represented Canisius in the Fordham Oratorical Contest held annually in New York for all the Jesuit schools in the province. Donald Swanz represented Canisius at the Knights of Columbus Oratorical contest here in Buffalo.

The roar of the crowd has subsided, pulses have ceased to pound, but many a year will pass before the glories of the '48 team fade from our minds and hearts. This was the team that found the spirit of old Washington Street in the midsummer heat and sweat of its old Dust Bowl, and brought it up to Delaware Avenue in the Fall, and turned it loose on seven startled opponents. Halloween night saw us with six victories, one loss and another trophy for an already crowded case.

Canisius 26—St. Mary's 6. The day was cold but the T was torrid as the Blue and Gold hit pay-dirt four times. St. Joe's looked at the box score twice.

The ball hit the center bar, teetered a moment as thousands gasped and hundreds prayed, and fell over for the all-important point that beat St. Francis 7-6. Diebold leaped with glee and thanked the Lord for his talented toe which had made the difference. And all of us thanked the Lord for Donius' speed and the heart and muscle of Wende, Cleary and Johnson whose goal line stand in the closing minutes left the Canisius stands limp and exhausted.

Canisius won everything but the ball game when Duffy upset them 7-2. Gross, Koch and the crippled Adema were bright spots mid the gloom of officials' displeasure and very tough breaks.

Weimer was the whole show as Canisius trampled an out-manned DeSales squad 27-0. Jakiel's pent-up fury exploded but a little illegally. Result—first down for Canisius, 60 to go.

Ryan was the next to bite the dust to the tune of 47-6. Taglienti showed the way on the ground with two long TD runs while the strong right arm of Dick Griffin pitched three strikes into pay dirt.

St. Joe's tasted bitter defeat for the first time as the Crusaders rose to the heights on the night of nights and sent the Maroons home on the short end of a 14-9 score. Coach Barnes got the jump on the Main Streeters with his no-huddle plays and the masterful quarterbacking of All-Star Zenger kept the befuddled Joes on the run for the rest of the game. Earl Scheelar, the mighty mite, came into his own with his two touchdown dashes, ably assisted by Marty Vecere and Ed Jurewicz.

The Crusaders closed the season with a 19-0 win over South Buffalo's Timon. Scheelar came off his sickbed to kick the final point that made the Blue and Gold Co-Champions.

Post-season glory came to four of the team when Zenger, Jurewicz, Koch, the nonpareil guard and Captain Russ Rosati, our glue-fingered hero, were named to the All-Star team selected by Buffalo's daily papers. Congratulations to a great team and two great coaches, Johnny Barnes and A. Petrella.

Co-Champion

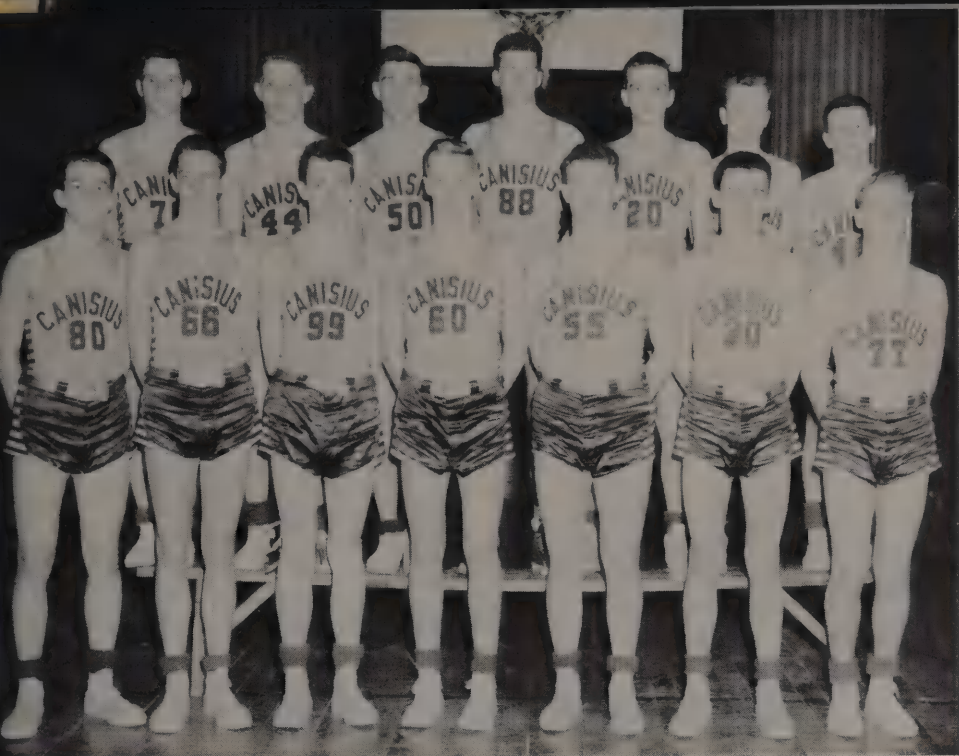

The Canisius Crusaders opened their '48-'49 campaign with a rousing triumph over the Irishmen from Timon. The win was a costly one, as Johnny Barnes' crew lost their captain, Johnny O'Connor, by a leg injury. The cagers then went on the road to conquer St. Mary's of Lancaster and St. Mary's of Dunkirk. Back home, the vaunted Crusaders attack reached its peak in making Duffy of Niagara Falls its fourth straight victim. Dick Laux hit for seventeen tallies in that encounter. The squad continued its winning ways with triumphs over St. Mary's School for the Deaf, Ryan, and Our Lady of Victory. St. Joseph's C. I. then snapped the Canisius victory string by completely outplaying the Blue and Gold, thus creating a tie for the league lead. The Crusaders bounced back with a high-scoring win over Annunciation and a hard-fought victory over the Blue Wings of Holy Angels.

Varsity

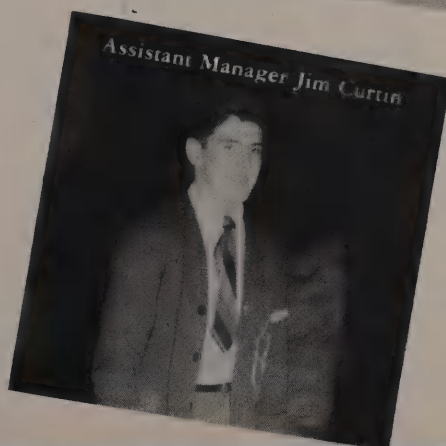

Impressive wins were then recorded over Neumann and DeSales, both on the opponents' courts. The hoopmen again tasted defeat at the hands of St. Francis in a bitterly-fought game on the Delaware court, despite the yeoman efforts of Ted Wojcinski, who turned in his best game with seventeen points. The Crusaders began their second round with triumphs over Timon and DeSales, but lost their third game of the season to St. Francis at Athol Springs. However, St. Mary of Lancaster and Holy Angels again bowed to the resurgent Blue and Gold. The season was climaxed with the team's best game of the season, a thrilling win over their great traditional rival, St. Joe's, and thus was assured for Canisius the co-championship of the league with St. Joe's and St. Francis. The season record was 16 wins and 3 defeats.

Canisius Trims Holy Angels To Reach Auditorium Finals

The Blue and Gold cage quintet, riding on the crest of a championship season, stormed into Memorial Auditorium the evening of March third and promptly trounced the Blue Wings of Holy Angels by a 33-26 margin. Piling up a comfortable lead, the Crusaders coasted home into the finals. However, it was another story one week later, when St. Joseph's Maroon Marauders upset the Crusader apple cart, 44-37. Canisius' attack bogged down in the vital fourth stanza when victory seemed attainable after a terrific uphill battle. Good, clean, hard, basketball but the Manhattan Cup slipped from our grasp.

UNSUNG

Deep down in the caverns of Canisius-on-Delaware amid the low, smooth hum of the huge boilers and oil furnaces, toil these two strong men, too often left down there forgotten and unmentioned. Brother Vogel-sang is our engineer and cus-todian of the vast heating sys-tem that radiates warmth and cheer to all parts of the Citadel whenever it is needed. Brother Wolfe superintends in the kit-chen and is Brother Vogelsang's constant companion and assist-ant as well.

BROTHER WOLFE

BROTHER VOGELSANG

STALWARTS

We, the students of Canisius, are grateful to these two Brothers of the Society of Jesus for the silent, reliable work they have done for us in the past. The hours of back-breaking toil and head-work that Brother Vogelsang contributed to the construction of the new wing would amaze us. We are happy to be able to pay them this slight tribute, completely in-sufficient a return for their labors. But we know that One Greater than ourselves, Him-self once an obscure toiler, will one day repay them beyond all bounds.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As this 1949 edition of the Arena Annual goes to press, it is difficult, indeed impossible, to adequately express our gratitude to all those who gave their every effort to make this Yearbook a success. Words such as these are but feeble mumblings and our real gratitude will be reflected in the years to come when we thumb through these pages with mixed feelings of joy and sorrow, yearning for the carefree days this chronicle will recall. It will be implicit in the recollection of the days of earnest study, of the triumphs of our varsities, it will come forward in the chuckles that a face or a phrase will bring to our lips.

But inadequate though it may be, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all who have made this Annual possible, to our patrons and advertisers, to Mr. Ross of The DuBois Press and his artist and friend, Mr. Roy Miller, and to all who were of assistance in one way or another. But especially are we grateful to the members of the Yearbook staff, to Al Gunther, our intrepid Editor, and Larry Judd, our never-tiring Business Manager, and above all, to Bill O'Malley and Tom Heffernan, our artist, both of whom labored tirelessly and unselfishly as we came down the home stretch, and last but not least, to our photog mainstay, Johnny Kmiec, whose camera and certainly his heart is almost bigger than himself.
